The World of White.

Come Before It is Too Late.

We have made the World of White and its accompanying distribution of white wear and white fabrics the great feature of the store this week, and our friends have shown their appreciation by coming early and often. But we want every one to share of the splendid values before the close—come tomorrow and share in these bargains.

Muslin Underwear at the World of White.

Quite different from the ordinary "sleeve underwear" that you generally find at ordinary sales—none of the skimpy sizes—poorly trimmed and badly finished stuff that has only "low price" as an attraction. The Muslin Wear at the World of White is that dainty, high-class lingerie for which this store is famous. Every garment is shaped right.

Summer Suits and Waists at the World of White.

Perhaps the timeliest offerings of all—we know that they will "take well." They are the fairest gathering we ever assembled—fairly sparkling with style brightness, and all so immaculately clean, crisp, and cool.

In looking at these you think not of the price—if you did you would be surprised at its lowness.

PUBLIC PERIL IN SOAP.

Vile and Worthless Imitations of Munyon's Witch Hazel Soap Menace the People's Health.

Diseased Fats, Biting Alkalis and the Impure Refuse of Slaughter Houses Made Over Into Soap Which is Offered for a Few Pennies Under the Misleading Name Witch Hazel Soap.

A concealed one? Why do the ranchmen and other cattle dealers, as quickly as even humanity will allow, rush drying steers along with the good ones to the abattoir?

It is because this animal refuse is boiled in vats, mixed with other disgusting constituents, disguised with cheap perfume that may cheat the nose, but cannot deodorize the skin, and is then turned out as soap under a name that should be a guaranty of its purity and goodness.

Prof. Munyon, who spent years in perfecting his Witch Hazel Soap and who guarantees by his entire fortune, business reputation and personal integrity its absolute purity and power in curing skin disorders, says:

"The man who would knowingly invite the mother to apply to her baby's skin a soap composed of vile impurities, and who would steal the name Witch Hazel Soap, and under the guise of an article known to be pure enough to eat, introduce into the home an agent of tuberculosis, scrofula and skin and blood poison, should receive a sentence as severe as that administered to the assassin."

"It makes the right-thinking man shudder even to think of the dangers, not alone to babies, but to all members of the family, that exist in the use of such soaps as these. Not only is there not a drop of witch hazel in any of them, but most of them are made up at a cost of 1 or 2 cents a cake by unskilled and cheap laborers, of materials that are so vile and tainted that their foulness not concealed by pungent perfumes they would not be tolerated for an instant, even in the poorest homes."

"I urge upon mothers who wish to raise their children in a healthy condition the absolute necessity of using the purest soaps they can obtain. Few realize the terrible danger there is in rubbing and lathering even the adult skin with a composition that contains poisonous ingredients. The pores are the natural sewers of the body; through which much of the cast-off material passes. If these be stopped up, or if through such channels impurities be introduced into the system, the direct results are bound to follow—results that are shown in unhealthy internal conditions, blotched hands and faces, eruptions, sickness and sometimes death."

"There is no purer soap in the world than Munyon's Witch Hazel Soap; there is none which is as good for baby or for grown-up, and there is none which more surely guarantees safety and health for the family." Price, 15 cents—Munyon, Philadelphia, Pa.

That, also, is why scores of imitators have endeavored to reap the benefit of its popularity by making up some miserable substitute, giving it the magic name, "Witch Hazel Soap," and selling it at a price which indicates that it is composed of only the cheapest and most harmful ingredients.

Prof. Munyon says he has analyzed twenty-one different kinds of so-called Witch Hazel Soap, and in none has he found the slightest trace of this great curative agent.

On the other hand, he asks the public to stop for one moment and ask themselves the question: "What becomes of the diseased cattle which die in the slaughter houses?" What becomes of the rotten carcasses that are unfit for any purpose save

CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY

Commencement Exercises at Noted Institution.

PROMINENT VISITORS

DEGREES CONFERRED BY PAPAL DELEGATE DIOMEDE FALCONIO.

Address by Rev. D. J. Stafford—President Roosevelt's Civil Appointments Applauded—Financial Report.

A distinguished audience assembled in McMahon Hall, of the Catholic University of America, this forenoon to witness the commencement exercises of that noted institution. The scene presented was an impressive one. The massive gold-framed painting of the late Pope Pius was a fitting background to the rows of prelates and professors eminent in the world of letters and theology who were seated on the platform.

The central figure was the Most Rev. Diomed Falconio, apostolic delegate, clad in his official robe of state. To his right was the Right Rev. D. J. Stafford, D. D., rector of the university, clad in his purple robe of office, while on the left of the papal delegate was Very Rev. C. P. Granman, D. D., vice rector of the university. The other seats on the platform were occupied by the faculty of the institution.

Added to this picture were the graduates, an immense number, who were seated in the central section of the auditorium, wearing their black gowns, and the spring colors of the costumes worn by the graduates of the various faculties, who were seated in the rear of the hall.

Dr. Granman's Opening Remarks. In opening the exercises Very Rev. C. P. Granman said it gave him pleasure to welcome the large audience to the ceremonies which mark the closing of the academic year.

"We are fortunate," he said, "to have with us on this occasion the Most Rev. Diomed Falconio, the apostolic delegate from Italy, who is here to confer the degrees conferred by the Holy See."

The speaker also congratulated the university on the presence of Rev. D. J. Stafford, who is a friend of the university, and who is not only with his noted oratory, but with his most earnest efforts.

Rev. Dr. Granman said during the past year the work of the institution had been greatly enlarged. He spoke gratefully of the action of the Ancient Order of Hibernians in endowing the "Hibernian" and of the Knights of Columbus in endowing the chair of American history.

He said the latter chair was filled acceptably by Prof. Charles H. Hays, M. A., who is well equipped to carry on the work. He spoke of other noted additions to the faculty during the year, and announced that William J. Connelley, M. A., had been appointed instructor of law for the ensuing year.

Roosevelt's Name Applauded. There was a hearty outburst of applause when Dr. Granman spoke of President Roosevelt's action in selecting as Secretary of the Navy Mr. Charles Joseph Bonaparte of Baltimore, one of the earnest trustees of the Catholic University.

The speaker described the appointment by the President of Prof. Charles Patrick Neill as commissioner of labor, Prof. Neill having resigned as professor of political economy at the university to accept the position.

The Catholic exhibit at the St. Louis world's fair, said Dr. Granman, received several distinguished prizes. This exhibit has been placed in McMahon Hall, and has become a center of much interest to students and visitors.

"The university has by no means lowered its standard of work," said the speaker. "In the future it will make scientific investigation a central figure of university work."

During the past two years, Dr. Granman added, the Catholics of the United States have contributed freely to the university work. The collection in 1904 amounted to $20,641.88, and in 1905 to $13,312.49. This year's collection is as yet incomplete.

In the Catholic parochial schools of this country are more than 1,000,000 Catholic scholars, many of whom should receive the higher education afforded by the university.

Describing the financial standing of the Catholic University, Dr. Granman said this year had been an unusually prosperous one. There has been received from all sources from April 1, 1904, to April 1, 1905, the sum of $329,047.32, and permanent investments of $201,000 have been made.

Conferring the Degrees. The ceremony of conferring the degrees was then performed by the apostolic delegate, the Most Rev. Diomed Falconio, who handed diplomas to the following:

Doctor of Philosophy—Rev. Martin Aloysius Schumacher, C. S. C., Washington, D. C.; dissertation, "The Knowledge of God: Its Relation to the Theory of Knowledge in St. Thomas."

Licentiate in sacred theology—Rev. James Michael Burke, diocese of Springfield; dissertation, "The Appointment of Administrators." Rev. Frederic William Burget, diocese of Indianapolis; dissertation, "The Protevangelium," Genesis 3:15.

Rev. Matthew Joseph Duggan, diocese of New York; dissertation, "The Son of God." Rev. Eugene Anthony Heffernan, diocese of Los Angeles; dissertation, "The Causes That Brought About Catholic Emancipation in Ireland." Rev. Bernard Aloysius McKenna, archdiocese of Philadelphia; dissertation, "Casuistry: An Educational Study of the Sixteenth Century." Rev. James Patrick McPeak, diocese of Syracuse; dissertation, "Recent Psychology and the Thomistic Theory of Habitual Grace." Rev. Ernest Aloysius Pfeiffer, S. M., Washington, D. C.; dissertation, "Appeals to the Roman Pontiff in the History of the Church."

Master of philosophy—Rev. Nicholas Michael Wilhelm, S. M., Washington, D. C.; dissertation, "The Discharge of Electricity in Gases."

Master of laws—George Moore Brady, Baltimore, Md.; dissertation, "The Study of Fire-resisting Design."

Electrical engineer—George Francis Harbison, Jr., Washington, D. C.; dissertation, "A Study of the Lighting, Heating and Power Plant of the Catholic University of America."

Bachelor in sacred theology—Rev. William Joseph Lalou, archdiocese of Philadelphia; Rev. Michael Joseph Larkin, archdiocese of New York; Rev. John Patrick McCormick, diocese of Hartford; Rev. John Joseph O'Brien, archdiocese of Boston; Rev. Joseph William Reilly, archdiocese of New York; Rev. John Francis Walsh, C. S. C., New York, N. Y.; Rev. Benedict Boeling, diocese of Washington, D. C.; Rev. William Edward Downes, diocese of Altoona; Rev. Michael Thaddeus Szalewski, C. S. C., Washington, D. C.

Closing Exercises. In concluding the interesting ceremonies Right Rev. D. J. Stafford, D. D., rector of the university, thanked the apostolic delegate for his presence, which, he said, was most appropriate to the occasion, the Catholic University having been born of a papal decree and is watched over by the papal authorities. He also thanked Rev. D. J. Stafford for the beauty and force of his golden eloquence, and his burning loyalty to the institution.

Monsignor O'Connell predicted a great future for the university, and urged all good Catholics to manifest the proper interest in it.

Before dismissing the audience the papal benediction was invoked by the Most Rev. Diomed Falconio.

The candidates were presented for degrees as follows: In arts, by Very Rev. J. J. Griffin, Ph. D., dean of the faculty of philosophy; in technology, by Prof. D. W. Shea, Ph. D., director of the board of instruction; in law, by Prof. C. E. Bonaparte, LL.D., dean of the faculty of law; in philosophy, by Very Rev. J. J. Griffin, Ph. D., dean of the faculty of philosophy; in theology, by Very Rev. C. P. Granman, D. D., dean of the faculty of theology.

Dr. Stafford's Address. As Rev. D. J. Stafford stepped to the fore to deliver his address he was greeted with hearty applause, which continued several minutes. Bowing his acknowledgments, he said:

"This occasion calls for a learned and technical discussion of some scientific or academic subject, and of such disquisition I am not capable. The great love I bear the institution must, however, plead for me in your estimation, and I can only hope that the lips of an intellectual babe may unwittingly speak wisdom, or that, like some truth-stammering oracle, all unconscious of the message he may say, that which may lead others, more capable, to think better and love more. Nor may I forget the propriety in the circumstance of the rector of St. Patrick speaking here. For he who laid the foundations of these splendid buildings and began the work of these faculties belonged to this church and got his experience there. The best years of his life, the best efforts of his will—may I say, the blood of his heart, are in these walls and in these faculties, and his going threw a halo over all, making a thing holy still more sacred, and a thing glorious still more glorious. And dearest, which, after all, are the final end of education."

"The growth of the university thus begun has been most remarkable. I have had patience with those who faint and become weary-hearted at the first breath of opposition, and a sturdy, for existence, such institutions as well as with individuals. As it develops the individual and brings out all that is best in him, reveals him to himself and his fellow men, and activity, dominant power which before he reckoned not, so does it strengthen, solidify and develop an institution. No individual can escape the influence of the institution. It is involved in the idea of existence itself."

Referring to the Catholic Church, Dr. Stafford said it is the greatest institution here below, and said it had been most bitterly, constantly and powerfully opposed. Its existence would have been a miracle, but its existence and continuance under this tremendous opposition, fighting every inch and setting for every advance, makes it evident that there is a divine principle of vitality in it. To have succeeded at all would have been a miracle, but it has succeeded under such circumstances is a double glory.

Work of the Institution. "What," he asked, "has the university done besides putting up some buildings and starting some five or six faculties in more or less successful operation? This: It has elevated the tone of the Catholic body all over the United States. It has raised the standard of every Catholic college in the country, and many of them, who were shamefully deficient, have become most respectable. Its influence has radiated and found its way into every parish school, even down to the smallest village, and every teacher and every pupil has heard something of higher culture. It has encouraged the educated layman all over the country, and it has filled the breast of every priest, battling against mighty odds, with the hope of the better champions that are to follow him and do the work of God, not with mere zeal, but with greater ability and better equipment, and at this moment every right-thinking Catholic in the United States is looking to this mountain of God, from whose summit the light is to shine out upon the future, with hope and love. The recent great calamity has been a benefit, for, under the skillful management and devotion of the rector and the intense devotion of the cardinal, it has been remedied, and it has drawn the hearts of all of us closer to one another and closer to the cause. Out of this very great tribulation the university is born anew. It was dear to us before, but it is twice dear to us now. Let it go on and do its work. What is that work especially to be?"

Opportunities of the Church. "The Catholic Church in the United States is confronted with the fairest opportunities in all her history. Not when all over the pagan world, not when she met Greek philosophy, not when she met the barbarian, not when the feudal system fell to pieces and she laboriously placed the foundations of modern Europe, has she had such an opportunity as here. As far as the mind of man can see into the designs of Providence, the future of civilization and world power is to be here. What mighty progress! What stupendous advances! What unparalleled development! What incalculable resource and limitless strength! The consideration staggers the mind. What is the cause of this? The Catholic Church is free; free to make her own laws; free to do her own work; free to do it in her own way; free to call into activity all her universal machinery and to evoke, as she has ever done, the heroism and zeal of multitudinous children—all men to great deeds for God and man—and thus meet one of the greatest crises of history."

Leaders Needed. "We need leaders. Not only great bishops and great priests—not only great ecclesiastics—but great laymen. Certainly the church needs the church always will need—great and learned ecclesiastics; men of broad mind, men of deep culture; men of great heart, sympathetic with everything good in the age and country; men of deep thought and intense purpose, whose words will stir or still a whole nation. But this is not all—it is only half. The clergy are not a cast, nor are they the whole Catholic Church, and side by side with such bishops and priests there must be found the laymen leaders of like culture, purpose and devotion, in order to do the work well. And perhaps at this moment the greatest need of the two is the latter. There is a very remarkable dearth of such men among us. They are more common among Protestants."

To the Graduates. "You young gentlemen who have received your degrees today, you are called to this sublime mission. You should not, you cannot, walk the ordinary paths of men. You are called to greater things. You are to be the leaders in Israel—the leaders of God's people—whether in church or in the world, and if you do your part well I have no fear for the future of the country, the future of the church or the future of the university. You must have the greatest form and direct public opinion. You must live lives of disinterested virtue and stainless purity and thus reflect honor on your alma mater."

Along the city avenues which reach the gate comes the public, hurrying, too, and eager for knowledge, to listen to a lecture. Among them a stranger, who asks of a youth, "Do you want many things here?" The youth answers, "Yes, all the philosophy, all the sciences, all the literatures, all the histories." Then surveying the scene with pride, he points toward the statue before the entrance and adds, "but above all, Jesus Christ."

Army Orders. Contract Surgeon Sidney L. Scott has been ordered from Fredericksburg, Va., to this city for duty with the troops at Saunders Range, Glenburnie, Md., relieving First Lieutenant William W. Reno, assistant surgeon, who has been ordered to return to his station at Fort Myer, Va.

Capt. Frederick H. Pomroy, commissary, has been relieved from duty as assistant to the purchasing commissary at Chicago, and ordered to St. Paul, Minn., for duty as assistant to the chief commissary, department Dakota.

Leaves of absence have been granted as follows: Capt. Casper H. Conrad, Jr., 3d Cavalry, three months' extension; Major Albert D. Kniskern, 1st Cavalry, one month, and Major Robert S. Smith, paymaster, two months.

Secretary Morton in New York. Secretary Morton has gone to New York for a few days on private business, and Assistant Secretary Darling is in charge of the conduct of affairs of the Navy Department.

Simply say, "Charge it." We'll do the rest.

CUP PRESENTATION. Central Gets First Go at Princeton Alumni Trophy.

This beautiful cup, which was offered by the alumni association in the District of Columbia of Princeton University to the base ball team of the local high school, will be presented to the team representing the Central High School at the school building tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. The speaker selected to make the presentation is Mr. Henry E. Davis, and as this is the first year that the cup has been contested for, Central High School will have the opportunity of keeping the trophy until next year, when if it fails to win the pennant the trophy will go to the one winning. The first team winning the pennant three times will be awarded the cup permanently.

The cup committee of the alumni association, which is composed of Wallace Donahoe, McLean, James L. Norris, Jr., and Henry V. Tulloch, has had the name of Central High School engraved upon the cup as the first pennant winners, and also a design of the seal of Princeton University.

CITIZENS MAKE COMPLAINT. Street Car Service Said to Be Very Unsatisfactory.

The street car service in the section south of the Eastern branch was considered at a meeting of the Congress Heights Citizens' Association last evening. The meeting was called to order in the hall of the association on Hamilton road, and at the outset some of the members cited instances of the car service as now rendered that aroused indignation. It was stated, for example, that an old couple boarded a car at the transfer station at the foot of 11th street southeast recently, supposing they were going to Congress Heights, although, as it happened, the car was bound only for Anacostia.

After the president had announced that a committee of the Congress Heights Citizens' Association in Anacostia and the Hillside associations in suppressing boisterous proceedings of colored visitors at a Hillside resort the meeting adjourned.

The Princeton Leaves for Panama. The Navy Department is informed that the gunboat Princeton left San Francisco yesterday for Panama to relieve the monitor Wyoming from further service on that station. It is the policy of the Navy Department to keep a warship at Panama, and the Wyoming has already been there for the allotted period of time.

New Cases of Yellow Fever. Gov. Magdon of Panama has telegraphed the War Department that new cases of yellow fever have appeared as follows: Alexander Govan, Scotchman, aged thirty-four years, blacksmith, Colon; sickened May 30. Francisco Navarro, Italian, twenty-seven years, laborer, Panama; sickened May 20.

Charles Singleton, formerly business manager of the Birmingham Republican, shot himself in a room at the Park House at Oswego, N. Y., yesterday.
